

After demineralizing and sterilizing the water the formula for the specific application will be prepared. The special treating of the water is necessary to keep the content completely free from bacterials.

The active solution will be transported to the machine where the tissue material will be completely impregnated. The wet tissues are folded and cut automatically.

Hereafter the tissues go to the belt where they are flow packed. Each production run gets a code for reasons of traceability. The complete production process takes place in a sterilized and air-controlled environment.

Quality control of each individual pack leading to a colourful final product.
